an examination in advance of trial. In her complaint Miss Morris states that she met the architect early in 1917 and that a strong friendship sprang up between them. MacKenzie, she states, told her he was in good financial cir-cumstances and requested her compantonship and society. As a condition, bowever, she says he exacted a promise from her to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors, cigarettes, rouge and cosmetics and also to give up her custom of frequenting Broadway cabarets.

The earlier report was that Hagen beck's collection of 300 animals, one of the most valuable of privately owend sollections in the world, had been re-fuced to sixty by the war time foreshortage in Germany.

DR. JENKS FINISHES HIS OWN HOSPITAL

Puts Up Building Practically Unaided.

There will never be any dissension or misunderstanding in the board of di-rectors of the Jenks Hospital, at Hastings-on-the-Hudson for the board consists wholly of Dr. Gedney Jenks, who not only paid for the hospital but built it with his own hands.

The building, which was completed yesterday, is the monument of three years of determination and toil by Dr. Jenks, who in 1916 started to raise the money to build it by subscription, failed to arouse the interest of his townsmen, and then decided to build it himself. The building is two stories in height and has every moderen appliance. The top floor is laid out in wards and the ground floor is taken up by an operating room and reception room.

Except when he was obliged to engage workmen to help him set the steel floor beams, Dr. Jenks did every bit of work on the building with his own hands. He knew nothing of either masonry or car-pentry when he started but he considers that he could command a first class mechanic's wages at either trade now. He put the building up in what he has described as the leisure intervals of his medical practice.

Dr. Jenks is widely known in the region about Hastings.

O'LEARY'S FLIGHT TO WEST COSTS $2,500

Judgment Ordered for Bail Forfeited by "Bull" Editor.

The Government obtained yesterday audgment for $2,500 against Jeremiah A O'Leary. A jury in the United States District Court, acting under instructions from Judge Neterer, found that O'Leary absconded when he went away on the eve of his trial on the Bull esplonage law indicement, and that the Govern-ment was entitled to a judgment on the bond given by O'Leary and his wife, Ger-trude, for his appearance in court. The couple pledged part of their equity is their home in Jumel Terrace as surety.
O'Leary was a witness. He swore he did not intend to abscond when he w to the State of Washington and established himself on a poultry farm. He said he started West with the intention of trying a divorce case in Reno, Nev., secame Ill and decided to secret hi self for rest before presenting himself for trial. Thomas B. Felder, counsel for O'Leary, argued that there never had been a case where the Government had collected bond after the defendant had rturned and been tried. He argued that it was mmaterial whether the return was voluntary or forced.

Earl B. Barnes, Assistant United States Attorney, submitted no case for the Government. After the defence ested Judge Neterer instructed the jury to find for the Government,

THE STORE OF JOHN WANAMAKER

This is the news for Today. The Store will be closed all day Friday

JOHN WANAMAKER Formerly A. T. Stewart & Co. Broadway at Ninth, New York. Store Hours, 9 to 5.30.

We Aim at the Utmost Limit of Human Perfection

that can be attained in human affairs by unceasing attention to the idea underginning this store, knowing that perfection is not absolutely possible in all particulars in everything.

Attempting something impos sible was what nine-tenths of the people said and thought about this new Store when it was new and its plans untried and not formulated.

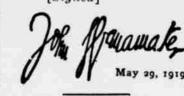

> We Resolved, However, to Try

Had we not made the attempt we would not have accomplished what is here, though in all these years we have been between the hammer and the anvil in forging out and shaping and reshaping what existed only in the mind as an outline and is now shaped to be seen with the naked eye.

We now realize that the best workman is made best by working, and we believe that practice makes-if not perfect-something closely approaching perfection, and for the latter we shall always struggle.

We greatly hope that what we have done through this Store and what we still hope to do will be an honor to our great city.
